Jon Scriptor

Jon Scriptor has lived most of his life in Moscow, and currently resides there with his wife of 23 years. Graduating from the University of Idaho with a bachelors in Psychology, his eclectic work experiences include working in the salmon industry in Anchorage and two extended contracts on a factory trawler out of Dutch Harbor on the Bering Sea. After moving back to Moscow he worked as a student financial aid advisor at the University of Idaho for eight years while chipping away part-time on his masters degree.

Currently, he is the guidance counselor at Genesee School and has been there since August of 2002. His own wandering work history and the years assisting numerous college students who didn't know what they wanted in a career, provided motivation to help current students strive to have meaningful post-secondary goals and organized plans to achieve those goals.
